It was a winning week again with profits from the Wednesday bets as well as Saturday 14th May.

This is the table we presented last week showing the various strategies' performance post upgrade:

Still very early days but the Elite-Suite v Platinum is starting to trend the way we predicted when we said this in April:

Which Plan?

There are a lot of good bets within the Elite-Suite that the Platinum plan misses. For that reason, my personal preference is the Elite-Suite.

I know it got off to the worst start possible but it has been fixed. It has the potential to double the bank quicker than Platinum did in that great run last year.

I

- It has 50% more bets than Platinum.
- It makes 38% more net dollar profit.
- Nearly all Platinum bets become Elite-Suite bets. All of the 288 Platinum bets are incorporated into the Elite Suite for consideration. Only 10 of those Platinum qualifiers were rejected by the Elite Suite filters over 16 months.

I am sure the following data will be of interest to many members. It is a list of all the strategy qualifiers since the upgrade. Here is a link to the PDF version:

The 70 total bets in the table above were provided by 35 individual horses.

The following list shows all the individual bets on the above list.

If one has qualified for more than one strategy then the highest source bet is listed. For example, Easy Single was a qualifier for two plans, the Mel Combo had the larger bet so that $150 bet is listed for this exercise.

Some members bet that way – a single bet on each individual horse that qualifies for one or more strategies.

We have produced an Excel Spreadsheet for those who want to look a bit deeper.

Remember, we are only six live meetings in but it is great to see the data trending very closely to the long-term, upgraded-algorithm results.

We will start to get serious input from Sydney racing now that their country stand-alone meetings are out of the way. It is incredible that NSW bets have already made $586 live net profit despite the bog tracks and bush meetings.

Thank you for the feedback, we appreciate it greatly.

Larry and Ric.
