Disappointing day on Saturday. No excuses. One got within a half inch (Narrated) but the results show that none of them could get over the line for the Elite-Suite, Platinum and Mel/Syd Combo.

Metro Express's third of three bets, Sir Davey, was a big winner at $9.50 so that plan is now in a good profit position after being the only plan in the red in last week's update. Unfortunately he missed the Platinum and Elite-Suite cut.

Just a quick update of the main strategies since the new algorithm kicked in.:

I am not concerned at Sydney Combo showing a slight loss for the period. The main problem there is not betting on heavy tracks but how prepared is the horse. Training routines are all over the place. Whether our selection is 100% or not is clearly a serious temporary variable outside the norm. Saturday was the first losing day for the Syd/Mel combo bets (combined) during the period being analysed.

We have analysed Sydney Combo betting to check each track condition's contribution for 2020-2022.
